

“Feeding the Front Lines” Frequently Asked Questions

What is the “Feeding the Front Lines” initiative?

Many members of our community have generously offered to supply meals for our hardworking front-line health care staff. Feeding the Front Lines is a special initiative to show support for health care providers, while also helping local restaurants.

Can I bring homemade meals directly to an MUHC hospital or clinic?

Unfortunately, MU Health Care cannot accept gifts of homemade food.

How can I make my gift?

To make a monetary gift that you would like used to purchase food for MU Health Care caregivers, please visit our Covid-19 Relief Fund page and enter “Feeding the Front Lines” in the Please share with us why you are giving box. If you prefer to mail in your gift, please send to:

MU Health Care Covid-19 Relief Fund, Office of Advancement, 407 Reynolds Alumni Center, Columbia, MO 65211. Please indicate your gift is intended to support the COVID-19 “Feeding the Front Lines” initiative.

Whom can I contact if I have questions about my donation?

If you have any questions about supporting MU Health Care’s “Feeding the Front Lines” initiative, please contact Sariah Pereira via email at pereirasc@health.missouri.edu (please put Feeding the Front Lines in subject line) or call 573-882-0488.

Restaurants Looking to Donate Food

We kindly request that restaurants looking to donate group meals to an MU Health Care location contact Curtis Lilly at lillycr@health.missouri.edu or by phone at 573-884-5233 for approval and delivery instruction.
